A few highlights

- End 1830: The Honorable George Bryson acquires thousands of acres of timber surrounding the Coulonge falls. The Bryson family will then operate the site for 2 generations.
- 1982: End of the logging industry following a government law that prohibits the floating of logs in the river citing environmental reasons. This new law will forever transform the lumber industry throughout Canada.
- 1992: Creation of the Chutes Coulonge Foundation by concerned citizens devoted to the protection and preservation of the park which was neglected throughout the years.
- 2008: Construction of the aerial park as we know it today. This park now includes a tree top obstacle course, giant zip lines and the one and only Via Ferrata in the region.
- 2013: Our Park sustains important damages caused by devastating micro-burst during the July 19th, 2013 storm. Following the storm, the park closed for 2 weeks in order to clean and secure the site. More than 150 trees and several aerial activities are lost due to the storm. The financial and material loss is estimated at several thousands of dollars.
- 2013-2014: With limited financial resources, the park manages to rebuild some activities and clean the park to make it safe to the public.
- 2014: The park build a new tree top obstacle course to replace the one damaged in the storm. This new course includes several new features including zip lines and obstacles. It is considered a considerable upgrade from the previous course.
- 2014-2015: In order to diversify its tourism offer, the park creates an experiential camping project by installing yurts and tipis in the park. These accommodations will be available 10 months out of the year starting august 2015. This project will continue to take expansion during 2015-2016 with other unique camping opportunities.
- 2014-2015: The Park develops 5km of hiking/snowshoe trail which is added to the existing trail network. This loop shaped trail leads to a lookout with an impressive view of the Coulonge River. This trail will also be available starting August 2015.

- 2015: Construction of a splash pad for kids and families. This important investment will enable the park mission to continue expanding its tourism offer to all kinds of groups in a safe and unique environment.
- 2015: The Park opens during the winter for the first time in history in order to make this beautiful site more accessible. Our snowshoe trail is also inaugurated in January 2015.
- 2015-2016: Planning for the construction of a new challenges course for kids aged 6 to 10 in order to replace the obstacle course completely destroyed in the storm.

Conclusion

The Pontiac : Much more than just a car!

In the past, the Pontiac Region's economy relied heavily on the logging industry. Since it has almost completely disappeared, the region is now developing a new sector of activity through tourism by displaying several quality outdoor and recreational services. Chutes Coulonge Park is a major pillar of this industry.

We view ourselves as the Ottawa /Gatineau region's backyard for outdoors and nature lovers, a place where there is so much to discover. Much more than just a car, the Pontiac is an exceptional place to be discovered by people from the region, Canada and all over the world.

The objective of this press kit is to highlight the tourism attractions offered in our region and to help position ourselves in the region's tourist industry.
